

Project Coaching

"It's really lonely being a project manager".

That was the quote from a participant on a 2 day Perfect Project course. He went onto to say that he was involved in a large project which:

- ▶ involved many parts of the organisation
- ▶ will cost a large amount of money
- ▶ involved significant risk

He wanted some help and we were able through Project Coaching sessions to provide him with:

1. the support mechanism he lacked
2. a place where he could explore different ways of delivering elements of the project
3. a challenging but helpful environment
4. the space to develop a range of additional skills complementing his newly developed project management skills

Maybe you have someone who needs that extra bit of help, someone who is in the middle of a large project or simply needs their hand holding.
